Don't Forget To Pay Your Assessments!

Homes in Taylorfield are part of a homeowners association, and owners are responsible for contributing to it by paying assessments.

What are these funds used for?

These funds are used to manage and maintain the community in which we live. For example, community funds are used to pay landscapers to refresh plants at the entrance, lay mulch and mow and edge the grass in common areas. Any lakes or fountains must be treated regularly by a professional to ensure they're not attractive breeding grounds for mosquitoes. The electric bill for lighting at the community entrance is covered by association dues as is the water bill for any sprinkler systems in common elements. Community funds also pay for property insurance to protect association assets.

The Board is a crew of volunteers, and the association avoids putting all that responsibility on their shoulders by delegating it to a management company. Therefore, a portion of community funds also pays for management, who takes care of all that overseeing, tracking, scheduling, invoicing and paying for us. They also keep the books to ensure we're all contributing our share toward the community, check for and enforce violations of the Covenants, manage architectural review requests and more.

Sometimes it's hard to imagine our little neighborhood could be so much work, but it's worth it to maintain a safe and beautiful space we're proud to call home.

How will I know when and how to pay my assessments?

At the end of this year, you'll receive a letter reminding you that you have an assessment due, an invoice from the bank with instructions for how to pay and a slip of paper to send in with your payment, called a coupon. Claiming these never arrived is not an acceptable excuse for nonpayment, so if you're nearing the deadline and can't locate your payment coupon, it's your responsibility to email Info@KingdomManagement.com to get the information you need well in advance. Please include your property address and our community's name.

What happens if I don't pay my assessments?

Owners who don't pay their assessment by the deadline are sent a Notice of Late Assessment, per the law in Florida. This functions as a final notice, and accounts that are still unpaid 30 days after this letter will be sent to a collection attorney. After the account is in collections, management cannot accept any payments, and the debt can only be resolved through direct communication with the attorney. Owners will also be responsible for the cost of the attorney, the amount of which will be within the Florida Statute guidelines for collection costs.

We understand residents work hard for their money, so don't get stuck paying more than you have to by letting your account go into collections. Please make paying your assessment a priority, and reach out if you have questions.

Home Maintenance

Fire Extinguishers: With the holidays coming up, many of our kitchens will be seeing more use than usual. To protect you and your neighbors, make sure you have a fire extinguisher at home. If you already have one, make sure it's ready for an emergency by checking the pressure and confirming the hose and pin are in place.

Indoor Detectors: While we're thinking about fire safety, take a moment to check the batteries and operation of your smoke and carbon monoxide detectors.

Expired Ingredients: To be sure your kitchen has room for holiday cooking and the ingredients that requires, take a moment to clear out expired or unwanted items from your fridge and pantry. Unwanted nonperishables that still have a little shelf life can be donated to a food pantry.
